

COMMERCIAL.

SATURDAY, MARCH 12, 1864.

The Alabama at Annapolis has been a topic of discussion the past week, and the chances of her getting out of the trap with three holes into which she had been muzzled, have been well canvassed. If the Wyoming continued alone to "stand guard" at one of the outlets, the Alabama would be ready to "stand guard" at the other. The latter would escape without harm. If the Alabama arrived at Annapolis before the Wyoming, there is strong probability of an engagement in that port. If one of our merchant or whaling captains had command of the Wyoming the Alabama would have been allowed to leave the dock without an attack, the damage to what they might. They could not be over a hundred thousand dollars at the most, with an "apology," which any commander could well afford to give, if international rights demanded it. Should Semmes get to sea, and the chances were in his favor, if the Wyoming continued only to "stand guard" he would go to Kanagawa at once, where he would be fed by foreign sympathizers; then he would proceed to the Ochotsk in May or June, play the deuce with Massachusetts boys, for whom he has great ideas, then move on to the Arctic, where he would find more game, blow all the New Bedford ships sky-high, and perhaps visit San Francisco or Honolulu. This may be his programme, if McDougal lets him off from Annapolis. We don't wish to excite any fears among women, and there is no need of their entertaining any. All that Semmes can do, should he fall in with it, is to make himself a nuisance to the ships, and against such accidents the owners should be insured by war risks, which are not very heavy. Not a man has ever lost his life, that we remember, by any of Semmes' captures, and he would probably ship or land the crews of all vessels he might destroy. Of course, we are speculating on what may happen, if Semmes escapes. The next news from China will perhaps tell us of his capture, though McDougal's "standing guard" off the port of Annapolis, has a very suspicious look about it.

Regarding a vessel to freight on to New Bedford, we learn that orders have been left in San Francisco to charter a ship capable of carrying 8,000 barrels. A large fleet of clippers was due there at the latest dates, and no doubt exists that a ship will be obtained at fair rates, to be here before April 12th, capable of taking all the oil that may be offered for shipment home.

An auction sale of the stock in trade of a Chinese merchant on Nuuanu street, (Chungking), who is leaving for China, took place on Wednesday. The bidding was remarkably spirited, and prices were higher than have been realized for months, some articles bringing more than cost. Taxes having now been paid in full, retailers appear to have more confidence in the spring and summer trade. Stocks of desirable staples in the hands of country dealers must be very limited.

The only foreign arrival the past week, has been the Danville, from Vancouver, with a cargo of lumber and merchandise. A sale is advertised for Wednesday next, embracing choice staple goods, which is worthy the attention of traders.

The Yankee sailed on Saturday for San Francisco, taking a very heavy cargo, and a crowded passenger list.

On Monday the Constitution and Speedwell sailed for Victoria, and will have a good opportunity to test their sailing qualities.

The Singapore is loaded and will sail this morning at 10 o'clock for San Francisco.

Circuit Court of Maui.

A special term of the Circuit Court, Second Judicial District, was held at Lahaina on Tuesday, Feb. 23, 1864. Owing to the absence of jurors on that day, it was adjourned to the 25th. Court opened on Thursday the 25th, Hon. R. G. Davis, associate Justice of the Supreme Court, and Hon. F. W. Hutchison, Circuit Judge, presiding, at which the following cases were heard and determined:

The King vs. Kala.—Manslaughter. Nolle Pro entered. Acting Attorney-General for the Crown.

On the 24 day of March, 1864, the business of the Special Term of the Circuit Court of the 2d Judicial District, being concluded, the Court adjourned sine die. After the adjournment Judge Davis heard several Petitions at Chambers.

A NEW BOOK OF THE ISLANDS.—In the San Francisco Bulletin we find the following:

"I have been interested within the last few days that a work on the Sandwich Islands, the production of this city, will soon be published in New York. It is full of the reminiscences of ten years' experience, and speaks fully of the character of men and things which fell under the personal observation of the writer. The personal of a few shrewd indications to me that it will be regarded as a good sample of Hawaiian matters during the most eventful period of the history of the Kingdom."

We suppose the work referred to above is one written by D. L. Gregg, Esq., formerly Hawaiian Minister of Finance, who has had several years preparing. He has a good reputation as a clear and vigorous writer, and we are quite confident that any book that he may produce will prove to be a well-fitted narrative.

PACIFIC Commercial Advertiser.

SATURDAY, MARCH 12.

In another part of this paper we print the proceedings of a meeting called to organize a Planters' Association. It was well attended, and the report will be found interesting. There is a remarkable unanimity of sentiment respecting the objects aimed at in the call for such an organization—viz: more discussion of matters pertaining to agriculture, and especially, at this time, to sugar culture. There is not a man in the city or kingdom, who is not directly interested in the advancement of our agriculture, or who does not feel more or less concern in everything that tends to advance it, or who would not make some personal effort, or join in the discussion of industrial questions had we an organization of the right kind. A necessity exists, and Mr. Wyllie's plan, to form an association to meet it, is only an expression of what all acknowledge to be a want. We need some organization where everybody who has a thought to express on sorghum pans, evaporators, tall chimneys, small 10-acre plantations vs. large plantations, comparative cost and profit of such estates, plans for providing labor and fuel, and a score of equally-important questions which the discussion of these would evolve—can meet and freely discuss their advantages and disadvantages. Every planter has felt at times his ignorance and the need of more information on the business he is engaged in, and in some instances thousands of dollars might have been saved to him by knowing facts which his neighbor has learned from slow experience or otherwise.

Although the sugar interest is the one that has called out the present movement, yet there are other important interests that will soon demand equal attention. One of these is wool growing. In a few years our wool interests promise to rival sugar, and in connection with it a multitude of questions must arise. The experiments made with cotton on this island and Molokai, have demonstrated that its culture may be successfully carried on, and that it is most admirably adapted to our islands and especially to the employment of females. These and other topics will be brought up for frequent discussion, and some organization should exist through which those interested can ventilate their ideas, experience, and such facts and statistics as may from time to time be learned.

Now, although there is no diversity of opinion respecting the need of such a society, there is much as regards the best way of carrying out the proposed plan. It was stated at the meeting that His Majesty thought that the Royal Agricultural Society would serve as the best medium for the objects proposed. Many will coincide with the King, who possesses much practical experience and good judgment on such matters. The views expressed by Mr. Aldrich at their meeting were sound and met favor. We say that they convey the sense of almost every one. The Agricultural Society is the proper organization, let it only be officered by energetic, wide-awake men. So long as Judge Lee and Mr. Marshall guided its affairs, it went on prosperously, and was a national benefit, enjoying the confidence of planters and agriculturists. It has now become a lifeless skeleton, and must remain so, until reorganized by officers that can cooperate with planters and with our agricultural interests. With His Majesty the King or either of our active planters as President, the Society might be converted into a public park, the purpose for which it is proposed to organize a new association.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

A PUBLIC PARK.—Nothing is more needed here in Honolulu than a public park, and if we are ever to have one, now is the time to make a move and secure the land. Years ago, there was some talk about a Park on the plains, to be called "Thomas' Square." The land reserved for it is there still, and the lots too, which were sold under the excitement, they are there still—all unfenced and barren and unproductive as investments as the day they were sold. Had "Thomas' Square" been fenced and improved 12 years ago, there would be to-day a grove, which if not an ornament to the city, might have improved the value of property around it very much. Had Honolulu had the enterprise of eastern cities, Punchbowl hill would be converted into a public park, with a carriage drive around the summit crest, guarded of course by a wall, and the bowl laid out with walks and drives that would make an attractive resort, a carriage road, with no very great outlay, be made from the royal school house, around the North base, and then up the east side, climbing the hill, so as to make the ascent easy. Not one city in a hundred has a better site for a promenade or a more lovely prospect than that from Punchbowl hill. If you doubt it, take a horseback ride on to the top some calm morning; if you find a better site for a public park ground, let us know where it is.

WINE MAKING.—Some four or five years ago, the Legislature removed the restriction on the manufacture of wine. But as yet very little attention has been paid to the cultivation of grapes or the manufacture of wine, one cause being the want of knowledge on the subject. A gentleman in Ohio recently wrote to a friend in Italy, who had been very successful in wine manufacture, and received from him the following reply, written in broken English:

"The way to make wine of grapes is to stamp them well in a tub with a bol and stink in the bottom, and put that juice in a barrel and let it stand for four days, and then let it out, otherwise the wine will stink of wood. Let them boil for forty days meanwhile making the barrel full every day for in the boiling time it will be better and it will be good. The word 'bol' means 'stink'." The rest is intelligible, and those who follow the precept faithfully will find it a good says a contemporary.

KAHOOLA HARBOR.—Capt. McGregor of the Annie Laurie, informs us that on his last trip to Hawaii, he took the steamer into Kahoohau harbor, which is some 7 or 8 miles south of Kalaheke Bay. He found the channel leading into the harbor deep enough for any vessel, but there are three rocks lying in the passage, which have to be carefully avoided. These can easily be destroyed by blasting at $50 expense. Once inside, there is a good, safe and deep harbor, though quite small. A vessel can however lie along the shore in deep water, and take off freight and passengers without boating. Some twelve or fifteen years ago, California potato schooners occasionally went in here to load, but latterly few vessels have entered the harbor. It is none the less safe or valuable, however.

WHALING NEWS.—The bark Martha and Pacific at our latest dates, were both lying at Kalaheke, Hawaii. They have been cruising about this group for the past three months for sperm whales; the former had taken six and the latter four, averaging from eighteen to twenty barrels each. Whales have been seen outside this harbor occasionally for two weeks past; they were probably humpbacks, however.

OMITTED.—A variety of matter prepared for this issue, including a leading article, communication, notes and foreign news, has been crowded out to give place to the numerous new advertisements which appear this morning.

To READERS.—The advertisements which appear on this (the second) page of the paper are always new or renewed notices, and those who expect to be posted up, should read them as well as the items.

SANITARY COMMISSION BULLETIN.—We have received from the Secretary of the U. S. Sanitary Commission in New York, the first three numbers of a semi-monthly periodical, published by it. The object of the publication is indicated in the following introductory remarks which we find in the first issue:

The U. S. Sanitary Commission have long felt the need of some direct method of communication with their widespread constituency. Those who furnish the money and the supplies, and who are necessary to the success of the Commission, are maintained, have a right to more frequent and full accounts of what becomes of their charity than we have hitherto been able to give them. It is true, we have published a large number of documents containing this information, and distributed them widely; but they have necessarily lacked the freshness and the personal details which a less compendious and less formal account of our current operations would afford. A thousand interesting particulars reach our several offices in Washington, Louisville and New York, which we are anxious should come to the knowledge of the people and the friends of the Commission, and report these particulars in a Bulletin from the lips of our agents in the field and the hospital.

Besides giving an abstract of the doings of the Commission, the periodical has some interesting miscellany, from which we extract the following item:

BATTLE OF DEPTHEW.—This battle of three days will compare in magnitude and far-reaching consequences with any of the great battles of modern times. In the battle of Deftew, the Allies had 72,000, the French 50,000 men; in this battle the Allies had 90,000, the French about 60,000 men. The British lost 150 cannon, the French 225; the rebels had upwards of 200, and we an equal number. The Allies lost 20,000 in killed and wounded; the French 40,000 in killed, wounded, prisoners, and deserters. The Federalists lost about 4,000 killed, 12,000 wounded, and 4,000 prisoners, or in all about 20,000. The rebels lost 5,500 killed, 21,000 wounded, and 9,000 prisoners and 4,000 stragglers under arms, a total of 39,500. The proportion of men and of losses in both battles is nearly the same.

PERSONAL.—By the Yankee, WARREN GOODALE, Esq., late Collector-General, took passage. A few days prior to his leaving, the leading importers of this city, desirous of expressing their esteem and confidence in him, presented him with a purse of One Thousand Dollars, which was accompanied with a letter, signed by them. Mr. Goodale acknowledged the gift in a most earnest reply. We should be glad to publish the correspondence, but the gentlemen interested prefer that it should not be. Never has a public officer under this government served the interests of the people with more zeal and faithfulness, and never was such a testimonial more deservedly bestowed.

By the same packet, Rev. W. F. Snow sailed for California, where he purposes to settle as a preacher. During his short stay here, he frequently supplied the pulpits of the two foreign churches in Honolulu, and left a very favorable impression, as a preacher of earnest piety and thrilling though unaffected eloquence. In a young and growing country like California, he will not long remain idle, and the parish that secures him as its pastor, will find it confidence fully repaid.
